

Aletta Brady

Queer, non-binary activist, who founded Our Climate Voices, “the award-winning social justice collective humanizing the climate crisis through story. It is a creative collective of young women, queer folks, BIPOC & disabled people.”

PINAR SINOPOULOS- LLOYD

Queer indigenous activist & co-founder of Queer Nature, an education & ancestral skills program serving their local LGBTQ+ community. A founding member of Intersectional Environmentalism: advocates for the protection of all people & the planet with inclusivity.

“...Indigenous gender expansiveness is older than America...we are ecological formations and also ecological indicators of health of place and of culture.”

Walk & Talk
June 18 2022

QUEER ENVIRONMENTAL LEADERS

Queer people have contributed to the fields of science and environmentalism throughout history and continue to do so today. Human rights and the protection of the planet are part of the same struggle.

Ruth Gates

Gay marine biologist whose personal mission was to help save the coral reefs.

1962-2018

“The mission is to start solving the problem, not just to study it.”

Joan

Roughgarden

Trans Ecologist & Evolutionary Biologist. Author of Evolution's Rainbow, a book that discusses diversity in nature.

“Bodies do not conform to a binary model”

Patti Gonia/ Wyn Wiley

Drag queen who uses their arts to bring attention to climate change while hiking.

“Intersectional environmentalism lets us weave in our humanity, our culture, our queerness and our color, into environmental work.”

Lindi Von Mutius

Chief of Staff for the Sierra Club. She identifies as bisexual and advocates for legislation that combats systemic inequality. Her platform, Out4Sustainability, promotes safe spaces & relationships.

“This is what I want to do – not just protect the environment, but protect people.”

